

Joe LoCascio

Ghosts

Joe LoCascio - piano

1. Emotion Sickness	3:58
2. A Widow's Tale	7:12
3. Gently Criminal	6:18
4. Crumbling Divinity	3:45
5. Angelo	4:45
6. I Thought I Heard Ben Turner Say	1:01
7. Leaving Bridgeport	2:51
8. Badlands	4:39
9. One I Hope To Love	6:42
10. Audrey Hepburn	3:28
11. Nightingales	5:46
12. I Thought I Heard Don Wilkerson Say	0:58
13. These So Called Memories	5:11

Produced by Joe LoCascio

Executive producer, engineer, graphic layout - Chris Cortez

Cover Art - Cerrot Place by Philip Gurlik. www.gurlik.com

Cover photo - Pin Lim, Forest Photography. www.forestphotography.com

Recorded on December 8 and 9, 2007 at Houston Community College.

All songs were composed by Joe LoCascio. Published by Coolhot Music. BMI.

When Chris Cortez asked what kind of album I would like to record, my reaction was instantaneous – a solo project. It had been almost ten years since my last solo recording and the timing felt right. I went through about a month of positive anxiety just raring to get into the studio. I had decided on a program of original music, about three-quarters of it newly composed, and all of it, except "A Widow's Tale" released for the first time. After two short sessions in the studio, this is what we've come up with. I will forgo any comments about the music herein and let it simply speak for itself. However, I will say that I had a wonderful time recording it.

I offer my heartfelt thanks to Chris and Melody Cortez for their support and faith in this project. Also, thanks to Sydney Heald and Jonathan Moonen.

This album is dedicated to the memory of my grandmother, Catherine Candela.

Joe LoCascio

Copyright © 2007 Blue Bamboo Music. All rights reserved.

Unauthorized duplication is a violation of applicable laws.

www.bluebamboomusic.com

www.joelocascio.com